NATIONAL LEGISLATION

When the present congress assembled outlook for the interests of the people in national legislation was very gloomy. The very small majority of the dominant party in the House of Representatives, it seemed, would be hardly able to steer a course profitable to the country, against the united filibustering efforts of the minority; and some of those best acquained with legislative methods fully expected that all beneficial work in Congress would be prevented by the obstruction tactics of the Democrats. Now, however, those tactics have been defeated and the prospect for practical valuable work is brighter than for many years before. The people of the east are coming to understand the silver question in its true light, and the effects are shown by their representatives, of whom a considerable majority now seem inclined to deal more fairly with silver than it has been dealt with at any time since the demonetization fraud of 1873.

The tariff question also is receiving an intelligent attention which will probably result in a better regulation of that necessaarily and continuously agitated matter.

Could our law makers, when they have accomplished something in the above direction, give their minds, and a little of the peoples money, to the improvement of our foreign shipping, the Congress now sitting would be long remembered above many others for useful practical and patriotic work.

LONDON, May 16.—The Queen held the second drawing room of the season to-day at Buckingham Palace, Many prominent Americans now visiting London were presented to Her Majesty. The Queen has been much benefitted in health, by her sojourn in Aix-les-Bains. The rheumatic affection in the left knee from which she suffered before the work. from which she suffered before she went abroad has been considerably relieved.

"If the Queen had a bottle of Trib she would experience still greater relief." So say those who have used it.

A FUNNY AFFAIR.

A Revolt of Marriageable Pioche Maidens

Virginia Enterprise: For weeks past the gossips of Pioche have been busily engaged in working up a matrimonial boom. Ten couples had been worked up to the sticking point, as was supposed, by the old women of the place. All that was wanted was priest to complete the business, and one was sent for to Salt Lake City. The man of God arrived last week and the old gossips sallied forth to consummate the business they had worked up. The whole thing, however, ended in a fizzle, for as soon as the prospective brides caught sight of the priest their little fluttering hearts failed, and they all took to the hills. At last accounts the girls were still holding themselves aloof in the brush, and the matrons of the town were trying to coax them to come in and deliver themselves up to the sacrifice.
